Poster Contest on the theme of Black Culture and Social Justice

This art competition is sponsored by the Trotter Institute for the Study of Black Culture at the University of Massachusetts Boston with support from Embrace Boston. The contest is open to Boston, MA local high school and college students who develop a poster for the Trotter Institute that will be shared in our print and online publications. There will be three prizes: first ($300), second ($200), and third ($100) as gift cards. Student artists with honorable mentions for their designs will have their work displayed as posters at the Trotter Institute on the first week of Black History Month in February 2024 and invited to a small reception held in their honor. Criteria for submission: create an original poster that is defined by themes that represent Black history, culture, and social justice. See our website for more about the Trotter that might help inspire your design here: <https://www.umb.edu/trotter/> and all submissions will be due no later than December 21, 2023. You should submit one poster design as a digital file (PDF, JPG, PNG 11 x 17 1650 pixels x 2550 pixels) with the submission form to Dr. Hettie V. Williams, incoming director of the Trotter Institute, Hettie.Williams@umb.edu by or before the stated due date. For more information and complete contest rules and submission guidelines please contact Dr. Williams at this same e mail. You must be a currently enrolled student at a local Boston, MA high school or college to participate.
